cles in newspapers, he says: "When the practice of reprinting valuable information—editorial or contributed—expressing often new and original ideas of more or less value—with no reference to show the source from whence it emanated, leaving the impression on the mind of the reader, that it is original in the offending publication, it deserves no other name than that of theft. A lengthy reprint may accidentally appear without credit, and occasionally does in the best regulated establishment, but when several such articles are inserted in the same number, and the offense is often repeated, no excuse can palliate it." The venerable editor is right. "Render into Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

Quotes the editor of the Planters' Monthly:

"I have learned from observation that three things surely happen to a man who works steadily without relaxation. In the first place, he becomes nervous, irritable and hard to get along with. In the second place, the grade of his work falls off, and he is liable to err in his judgment. In the third place, he dies suddenly. It is an incontrovertible law of Nature."—CHAUNCEY M. DEFEW.

It is well to learn this. It is equally applicable to systems of government as to man's system. It seems to us that this is why we have so much trouble here. Let up a little. Change your policy somewhat. Live and let live. Be merciful and pardon the remaining political prisoners.

"If even a high American tariff has not failed to keep out European fabrics made with cheap labor, what kind of a tariff will be required to protect the United States from Japanese and Chinese manufactures made with still cheaper labor? No manufacturer, no American workman can look toward the East with clear vision without regarding the prospect as appalling."—Exchange to the Planters' Monthly.

How is it with our traders? Samples of the finest boots and shoes, and the finest bicycles as sold here, have been sent to Japan to be copied there. With their labor as cheaply paid as it is, articles thus made can be supplied to our local markets at from fifty to ninety percent reduction on our present rates, and still leave a handsome margin of profit to the importer and retailer. What are you going to do about it?

A gentleman named E. E. Boyer writes an article on the Republic of Hawaii in the Paradise of the Pacific. In it he makes the following curious (to say the least of it) statement: "Until the establishment of the republic, or at least of the Provisional Government, there were few inducements for permanent settlers in the islands, as capital could hardly be considered safe under a native government." Yet one of the strongest and most often used arguments of the persons who managed the revolution of 1893, aided by Stevens and Wilcox, was that there were over $30,000,000 of American capital invested on the islands. And that capital was their chief, if not their only justification for seizing the reins of government to keep its management to themselves. And now we are coolly told in a Government subsidized publication that "under a native government there were few inducements for permanent settlers" and "capital could hardly be considered safe." Before the revolution there were at least 70 years of "native government." Take the figures as alleged: that gives over $400,000 a year as the average investment of American capital. Since we have had two and a half years of Republic. At that rate over $1,000,000 more ought to have been invested to keep up the rate, and with the new "best government the islands ever had," we ought to have increased the rate. Have we? Have we even maintained it? Are we even one cent better for it?

In season or out of season every family should have a bottle of DIARRHEA MIXTURE in the house. There is none better than DWIGHT'S, which has been dispensed by the HOLLISTER PHARMACY for the last twenty years.
